March for Life Homily Ottawa

"...This conflict in which we are sent by Our Lord to engage, in this world, as his representatives, is not some superficial political contest, to be resolved by rallies or political operations. It is far deeper than that, and in fact when it comes to the human political calculations, the prospects are not bright. We do need to act wisely, with the natural wisdom God has given us, in our political strategies. But that wisdom, though necessary, and sometimes missing, is radically insufficient. The struggle in which we are engaged is a concrete and local manifestation of the cosmic battle between good and evil. Jesus is already victorious: the strife is over, the battle won. But we are called and sent to engage in the working out of his victory in this time and place. So our inner disposition, and outward demeanour, must reflect our understanding that we are servants of the Lord Jesus, Christ the King: this is a pilgrimage, not a political rally. Only under the sign of Christ will ultimate victory be won. This struggle is far beyond mere human efforts. That is why I strongly urge that all of us walk prayerfully and in silence, or that we pray aloud, or sing songs of worship. Not for us the chants and slogans. Not for us the shouts and rants. Not for us the way of this world. We are servants of the Great King, and we need to act accordingly. Our silence will shout far more loudly than the screams of those whom we encounter on this day. We must not become what we reject. We must go deep, very deep, and (if I may refer to a book which we should all read) we must appreciate the power of silence. It is in our prayer, adoration, and silent witness that the grace of God, and not our flimsy efforts, will be made manifest. That is why it is profoundly right that we begin with the celebration of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. As is said in the eastern Christian liturgies: To you O Lord. That is the final message of today's readings. It is summed up in a phrase used in the pontifical blessing which I will proclaim at the end of Mass: "Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth." Listen to today's psalm: "Sing a new song to the Lord for he has worked wonders. His right hand and his holy arm have brought salvation..."
